Actions Speak Louder Than Words

One sunny morning, a little rabbit named Benny was hopping around the forest. He loved to explore and play with his friends. One day, while he was jumping over a log, he heard a soft voice calling from behind a bush. It was his mother!

"Benny, I need you to help me pick some berries from the garden," she said.

Benny was having so much fun that he didn't want to stop playing. But he knew his mother had asked him for help, and he wanted to be a good son. So, he hopped over to his mother and said, "I will help you, Mom!"

Together, they picked sweet, ripe berries and shared them with their friends. Benny felt happy and proud because he had listened to his mother and helped her. He learned that being obedient and helping others is always the right thing to do.
